

Saying 'stay out' forever

Scientists at the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, one of the nation's repositories for long-lasting waste from nuclear weapons production, are preparing a warning system designed to be legible and understandable for 500 generations.

BACK TO PREVIOUS INFORMATION

A Monolith

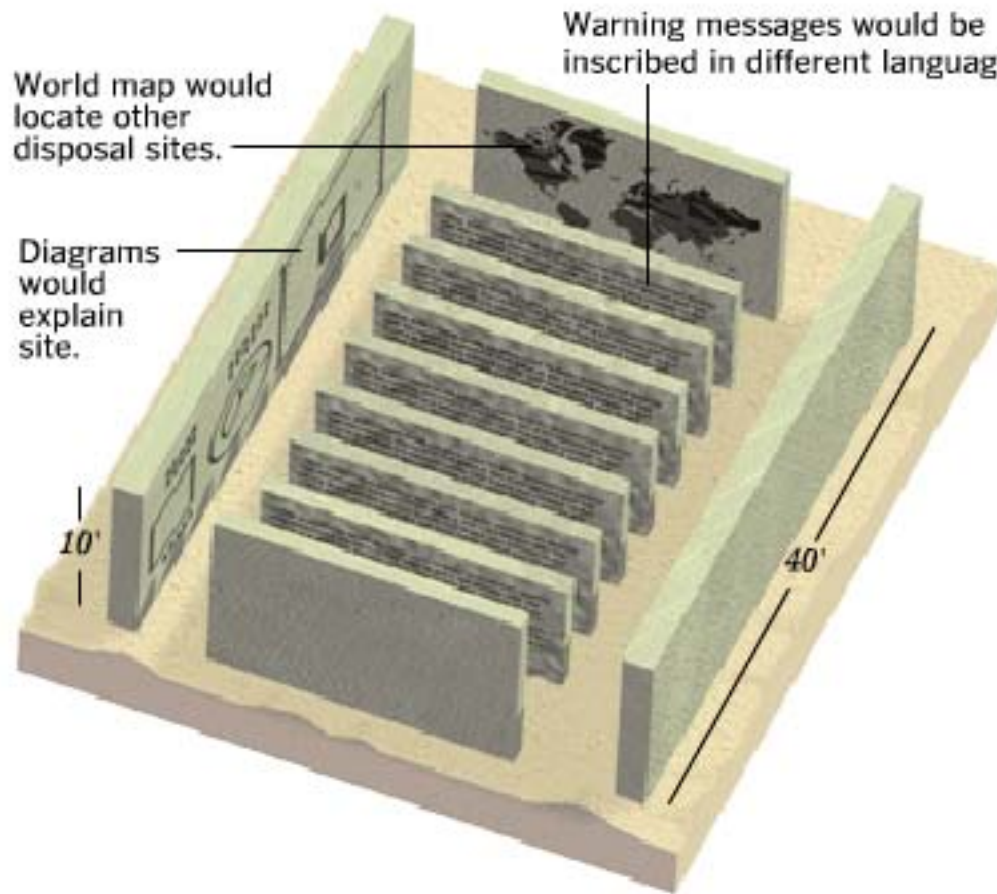

C Information room

Open air room would contain warning messages and cautions people to leave buried storage rooms for future generations.

World map would locate other disposal sites.

Diagrams would explain site.

Warning messages would be inscribed in different languages.

C Information room

media to counter likely